Last summer, friends and I took a trip that was on our bucket list for a while - barging down the Burgundy Canal. We booked the beautiful La Prosperite barge, and planned our cruise to start in Vandenesse-an-Anxieux, along the Burgundy Canal, and end in Dijon, France. It was such a wonderful way to enjoy a relaxing cruise down the canal with excursions to places such as Medieval chateaus and incredible Pinot vineyards that are famous in this part of the world. The setting is a rough part of town in the months just before the 1988 Olympics, a time when the military dictatorship slackened its grip in the hope of presenting a more liberal face to the visiting world. Awesome, you're subscribed!Thanks for subscribing! Look out for your first newsletter in your inbox soon! Gather the ingredients. In a cocktail shaker, add 10 to 12 rosemary needles and the simple syrup. Muddle lightly. Add the orange liqueur, cranberry juice, and lemon juice. Fill the shaker with ice and shake vigorously. Strain into an old-fashioned glass filled with fresh ice. Garnish with a sprig of rosemary. Serve and enjoy. When cranberries are in season, this drink is amazing with freshly pressed cranberry juice. The fruit is very tart on its own, so if you want to simply muddle them in the shaker, you may need to add more simple syrup (try 3/4 ounce). Another option is to sweeten the cranberries with a traditional stovetop method that's often used to prepare cranberries for food recipes. For fresh cranberry juice, you'll need 1 cup of cranberries, 1/2 cup of water, and 1/4 cup of sugar. In a saucepan that's large enough so the cranberries are in a single layer, cover the berries with water and add the sugar. Use medium heat and keep stirring until all the cranberries pop. Remove from the heat right away and let it cool. You can then muddle the berries the rest of the way in the pan and strain out the solids. Alternatively, add the amount needed to your shaker, muddle them with the rosemary, and fine strain the cocktail by using a mesh strainer over the glass. Grand Marnier may be a liqueur but it's actually as strong as the majority of tequilas, vodkas, and whiskeys. Bottled at 80 proof, this cocktail is not going to be as light as you might think. It's not too strong, though, and mixes up to 13 percent ABV (26 proof), which is similar to wine. When making this drink by the pitcher, it's easier to skip the muddle and make rosemary simple syrup instead. For a 60-ounce pitcher, combine 20 ounces (2 1/2 cups) each of Grand Marnier and cranberry juice with 6 ounces (3/4 cup) each of lemon juice and rosemary syrup. Stir and adjust to taste (more cranberry or syrup for sweetness or lemon juice if it's too sweet). Serve the chilled punch in glasses filled with ice, adding a few rosemary needles or a lemon twist as a garnish. It should create 13 four-ounce servings. If you'd like a stronger rosemary flavor, add a full sprig to the pitcher and let it infuse for a few hours. Remove it once it reaches your desired flavor. The punch (or the single drink) can also be topped with sparkling wine or a light soda to make it more refreshing. Rate This Recipe I don't like this at all. It's not the worst. Sure, this will do. I'm a fan—would recommend. Amazing! I love it! Thanks for your rating!
